GENEALOGY REQUEST. RE. JOHN BURTON JOHNSON b. 8 Jan. 1823- DELA.
d. 27 July. 1905- ARK.

To
Sussex Co. Dept. of Libraries
P.O. Box 589 GEORGETOWN, DELA. 19947

DEAR LIBRARIAN:

I am searching for the PARENTS of JOHN BURTON JOHNSON (1823-1905), my father Leonard Dodd's (1903-1937) paternal great-grandfather to include in my writing of family chronicles. I personally remember John Burton Johnson's daughter — LOUISA ELIZABETH JOHNSON DODD ELLIS (1848-1929), having seen her as a young child in 1927 and 1929. Please find attached (1. pedigree chart (2. family group chart for your edification from family records.

I have discovered many John B. Johnsons and Burton surnames in early Dela. I know that my Johnson is NOT in family of-
(1. Gov. WM. BURTON (1789-1866)- Sussex Co. — Milford
(2. Tanner- farmer Burton Johnson (1799-1868)- Sussex Co. - Indian River Hundred.

I know there were 6 Burton Johnsons in Dela. Census- 1820- Sussex Co. - all head of household + all in different dwellings — i.e. 2 in Broadkill, 2 in Indian Creek, 1 in Lewis/R, and 1 in Nanticok townships. 1830- Sussex Co census shows 4 Burton Johnson heads of household — 1 each in tup. Indian, Lewis/R, 1 in Dagsboro, and 1 in Nanticok. Is one of these THE ANCESTOR?

No other Delaware county has a Burton Johnson in 1820 or 1830. ERGO- it seems to me a locally prominent "Burton" must have influenced the naming of all these BURTON JOHNSONS. WHAT CAN YOU TELL ME?

FOR THE RECORD I did find reference to a land deed in 18th c. Sussex Co. Dela. Land Records — to wit — Deed # 506 wherein a Matthias + Tabitha COLLINS sold a 127 A tract of land to a Samuel Waples for £225. This deed was witnessed by BURTON JOHNSON, and Wm. Bagwell, BETHSHABA BURTON, N. Waples on 7 Jan, 1783, and Ackn. 7 May, 1783.

I have researched my ancestor blacksmith-farmer John Burton Johnson, born Delaware, 8 Jan., 1823 quite thoroughly from his marriage to Catherine M. Collins in PICKAWAY Co., OH. 8 June, 1843 until his death on 27 July, 1905 in Benton Co., ARK. According to Federal Census 1850-1900 he reported his parents were also born in Delaware. Can you help me find who they were? Offer evidence, and fees for obtaining the same, please. Thank you.

Sincerely,
GLADYS DODD
Gladys Dodd

P.S. I also had Dodd ancestors in Dela.- not sure who? — in 1800.

FLINT HILLS IN SPRING

Now comes the magic moment of the year!
Young Blue Stem creeping through the black, charred earth
On hills whose swelling bosoms
Nourish a thousand cattle.
A sea of rolling green
Which gives no sign of rank or bitter growth,
Or summer's withering heat.
Winding among them
The streams are emerald ribbons,
Looped on a pale jade green—
Dotted with the pink of redbud
And splotched with naked limbs of sycamores,
Outlined on misty green of elm and oak.
It must have been the Flint Hills that He saw
When the Creator looked upon his work
And found it good.

Early life and family

Burton was probably born in Indian River Hundred, Sussex County, Delaware. He first married Eliza Sorden and had one child, Rhoda. After Eliza's death in 1829, he married Ann C. Hill and they had no children. They lived in the Parson Thorne Mansion at 501 NW Front Street in Milford, and were members of Christ Episcopal Church.

Professional and political career

After receiving his medical degree from the University of Pennsylvania, Burton had a practice in Lewes, Delaware for a time, and then permanently in Milford. He was Brigadier-General of the Sussex County militia in 1827, and was elected as a Whig to the office of Sheriff of Kent County, and served from 1830 until 1834. With the disintegration of the Whig Party over the issue of slavery, Burton moved to the more "states rights" Democratic Party in 1848. He was his party's candidate for Governor in 1854, but lost to his neighbor, Peter F. Causey, a former Democrat who had left the increasingly conservative party for the seemingly more progressive American Party.

Governor of Delaware

Delaware experienced all the contention and bitterness of a border state in the Civil War and the events leading up to it, but because of its location and certain decisive military action, was spared much of the bloodshed of Kentucky and Missouri. Nevertheless, the divisions in communities and families, and their corresponding strong feelings were the same. A slave state with very few slaves or slaveholders, many in Delaware had an attitude they called "states rights," which really meant, "Outsiders are not going to tell us what to do." Given the close economic ties to Philadelphia, and the geographical separation from the Confederacy, there was little sentiment for actual secession. However, the opposition to the abolitionist and voting rights agenda of the Republican federal government were strong enough to create considerable contentiousness. These feeling were strongest in the two lower counties, which still had a majority of the population in 1860, and completely dominated the General Assembly, the real decision maker in the state.

With the approach of the Civil War, the American Party had collapsed over the issue of temperance, and the progressive elements of that party joined with other old line Whigs in a Delaware People's Party. Most of this group would eventually join with the new Republican Party in Delaware. Burton ran for Governor a second time, in 1858, against the candidate of this party, James S. Buckmaster, a Frederica merchant, and narrowly won. He then served from January 18, 1859 until January 20, 1863.

Burton tried to steer a course down the middle of all the competing interests. Like a majority in the state, he was strongly sympathetic towards the South, and a strong opponent of abolition, but he opposed Delaware's possible secession. A delegation led by Mississippi Judge Henry Dickinson came from the Confederacy to attempt to persuade the General Assembly to enact secession, but the suggestion was rejected, and Delaware remained firmly in the Union. Meanwhile factions of armed supporters of both sides gathered arms and trained. Burton asked the groups favoring the South to disarm, but later withdrew the request. At the same time he appointed West Point graduate and DuPont company president, Henry A. du Pont, to lead the state militia. du Pont was more decisive, and saw that when additional arms were secured from the federal government, they were directed toward loyal militia, and that the all-important powder mills of his company were properly protected. Du Pont would end up supplying over half the gunpowder used by the Union armies. When the call came for soldiers for the federal army, Burton again compromised by refusing to turn over the Delaware militia, or to pay for bounties, but did encourage enlistment. In fact, support for the Union was so strong that Delaware had a larger number of soldiers per size of population than any other state. This fact prompted U.S. President Abraham Lincoln to remark that "South of the Mason-Dixon line, noble little Delaware led off right from the first."

It took du Pont's well armed loyal militia, and other federal troops, to disarm the irregular units formed in Sussex and Kent County, and the militia went on to occupy the old State House and otherwise secure the state. Then as Burton's term came to its end, federal troops, once again, were called in by Republican leaders to supervise the 1862 elections, opening up possibilities for Republican electoral victories, but assuring a generation of bitterness on the part of many Delawareans towards the party that seemed to be unjustifiably ruling at the point of a bayonet.

WILLIAM BURTON was born near Milford, Delaware, on October 16, 1789. He earned a medical degree from the University of Pennsylvania, and opened a successful practice in Milford. Burton entered politics in 1830, as the sheriff of Kent County. He also made an unsuccessful run in 1830 for the governor's office, however he was victorious on November 2, 1858, and became Delaware's 31st governor. During his tenure, the Civil War was looming, and Burton advocated for a state convention to decide whether to stay in the Union. Governor Burton appointed Henry Dupont major general of the Delaware militia, and although the appointment was politically sound, Burton's sympathies were still not with the North. Delaware also supplied more troops to the federal army in the war effort than any other state. On January 20, 1863 he left office, retiring from public service. He returned to Milford and his medical practice. Governor William Burton died on August 5, 1866, and he is buried at the Christ Episcopal Churchyard in Milford, Delaware.

Description:
This database is an index to individuals enumerated in the 1900 United States Federal Census, the Twelfth Census of the United States. Census takers recorded many details including each person's name, address, relationship to the head of household, color or race, sex, month and year of birth, age at last birthday, marital status, number of years married, the total number of children born of the mother, the number of those children living, birthplace, birthplace of father and mother, if the individual was foreign born, the year of immigration and the number of years in the United States, the citizenship status of foreign-born individuals over age twenty-one, occupation, and more. Additionally, the names of those listed on the population schedule are linked to actual images of the 1900 Federal Census. Learn more...

Helpful Hints

1. This road map has a number of uses, but primarily it is to help you: a) find the present location of land owned by your ancestors (at least the general area), b) find cemeteries and city-centers, and c) estimate the route/roads used by Census-takers & tax-assessors.

2. If you plan to travel to Benton County to locate cemeteries or land parcels, please pick up a modern travel map for the area before you do. Mapping old land parcels on modern maps is not as exact a science as you might think. Just the slightest variations in public land survey coordinates, estimates of parcel boundaries, or road-map deviations can greatly alter a map's representation of how a road either does or doesn't cross a particular parcel of land.

by Samuel Willough by Duffield

"Over one hundred years ago, on one of Mr. Wesley's visits to Chesterfield, he had commenced an out-door service in the market-place. During the first prayer the constable came and demanded his presence before a magistrate. The prayer ended, the man of authority marched off with the preacher; but before doing so the man of prayer showed his faith by saying to his hearers, 'Friends, sing a hymn whilst I am gone—I shall soon be back;' and he gave out the couplet:

'Why should the children of a king
Go mourning all their days?'

Mr. Wesley returned and preached, before the hymn had been sung through a second time."

WHY should we start and fear to die?—WATTS.

This is Hymn 31 of Book II., "Christ's Presence Makes Death Easy." It has four stanzas.

In Leifchild's "Remarkable Facts" occurs a touching tribute to the power of this hymn:

Friends around the dying bed of an old servant of the Lord had been reciting verses of Scripture and stanzas of familiar hymns. At these words the dying man seemed particularly moved, and as the voice repeated,

"Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are,
While on his breast I lean my head,
And breathe my life out sweetly there."

he exclaimed, "My head!" and fell asleep in Jesus.

epitaph on John Burton Johnson's gravestone 1905 Newthorne Cem. Benton Co. Ark. More details here see pp 615-17

Miss Susan B. Higgins, missionary to Yokohama of the "American Women's Foreign Missionary Society," was on her dying bed in that distant land. A friend sang to her the stanza of this hymn commencing:

"Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are."

When the singer ceased, her voice choked with grief, Miss Higgins herself took up the strain, and sang the verses preceding:

"Oh, if my Lord would come and meet,
My soul should spread her wings in haste."

The work of this earnest woman only covered about eight months in Japan, but she was greatly beloved, and sincerely lamented by an unusual concourse at her funeral.

Dr. David Nelson, the great antagonist of infidelity, was a lover of English poetry, and especially of hymns. In his practice as a physician he found that the bulk of the theological learning of the families whom he met consisted of what was contained in the standard hymns of the Church. Frequently he would sing one of these hymns, impressively and alone, as the prelude of, or the peroration to, a sermon. As a physician he has been known to read or sing to the dying some such stanza as,
